The Central Alabama Veterans Health Care System (CAVHCS) was formed in 1997 as a result of the merger of the Tuskegee and Montgomery medical centers and, which includes two community-based outpatient clinics in Dothan, Alabama, one in Columbus, Georgia and the new Wiregrass facility at Fort Rucker. CAVHCS sites serve more than 134,000 veterans in 43 counties of Southeastern Alabama and West Georgia.

The Tuskegee and Montgomery campuses are 40 miles apart. The Montgomery Campus is located on 52 acres in a residential neighborhood adjacent to city school property and approximately five miles east of downtown Montgomery. The Tuskegee Campus is located on 170 acres of land in a rural setting adjacent to the historic Tuskegee University and Moton Field, home of the Tuskegee Airmen. Tuskegee, with its newly dedicated 100-bed Community Living Center, serves as the region’s Geriatrics, Extended Care and Rehabilitation Service Center of Excellence.

The East Campus also features a 43-bed homeless domiciliary, and serves as the region’s Mental Health Center of Excellence as well. Since the merger CAVHCS has expanded services to the Southeastern Region of Alabama by opening a Mental Health Clinic in Dothan, Ala., and more recently the VA Wiregrass Outpatient Clinic aboard the U.S. Army’s Lyster Health clinic, Fort Rucker, Ala. Operated within expanded VA/DoD sharing agreements, the new Wiregrass clinic will ultimately offer a capacity to serve more than 14,000 veterans, while increasing capabilities.
CAVHCS’ approach to foster working relationships with all DoD facilities in Central Alabama has been a key to ensuring improved continuity in clinical services, while promoting a more Seamless Transition.
